GREAT PLAINS RESEARCH

A JOURNAL OF NATURAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

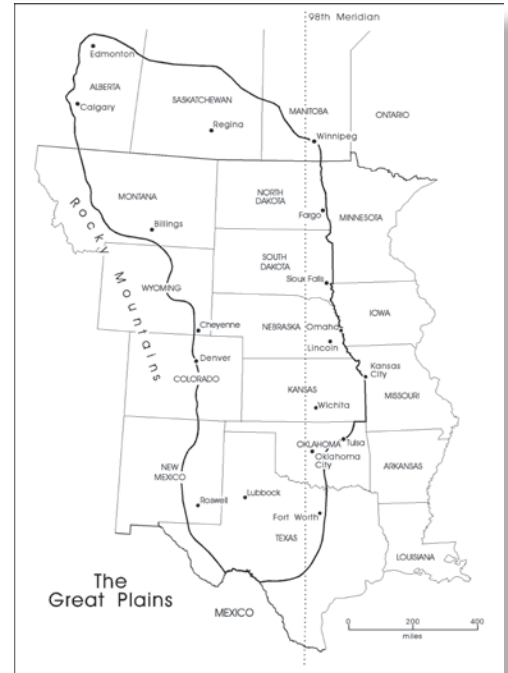

A PEER-REVIEWED JOURNAL ESTABLISHED IN 1991

GREAT PLAINS RESEARCH is a biannual, multidisciplinary, international journal that publishes peer-reviewed research on the natural and social sciences of the Great Plains.

The editor is soliciting current manuscripts on important research results and synthetic reviews of critical scientific issues for the Great Plains.

At this time page charges are subsidized by the UNL Center for Great Plains Studies, except for the costs of printing color images, which are paid by the author/s.

For "Instructions to Authors," discussion of potential articles, or subscription information, consult the website or the editorial office.
